The short answer Interpretation: our reading of the passages, not their words

The early writers read the eye in these verses as the inner eye of the heart and soul. A single eye is sincere love that fills the whole life with light, while an evil eye is hypocrisy and sin that darken a person. The worst darkness is false light, when hidden sin looks like goodness.

POINT 1 OF 7

The single eye is sincere love

Our note · compiled by machine learning · From the text: says what the passages say

Gregory Thaumaturgus explains the single eye as honest, sincere love. When a person is lit by it, what shows on the outside matches what is truly inside. Word and deed agree with the heart.

1 “The single eye is sincere love. When the body is lit by it, it shows through the outward members only those things that fully match the inner thoughts.”

POINT 2 OF 7

The evil eye is hypocrisy

Our note · compiled by machine learning · From the text: says what the passages say

Gregory calls the evil eye false love, or hypocrisy. A person can speak words that sound full of light while hiding works of darkness inside, like a wolf in sheep's clothing or a cup washed only on the outside.

2 “But the evil eye is false love, which is also called hypocrisy. By it, the whole body of the man is made dark.”

later in the same passage

“For there are those who are really wolves, though they may be covered with sheep's clothing.”

POINT 3 OF 7

False light is the deepest darkness

Our note · compiled by machine learning · From the text: says what the passages say

Gregory reads the closing warning this way: if even the love that looks like light is really darkness because of hidden hypocrisy, then a person's open sins must be darker still.

3 “That is, if the love that seems to you to be light is really a work fit for darkness because of some hypocrisy hidden in you, what must your open transgressions be!”

POINT 4 OF 7

The eye shows what is inside

Our note · compiled by machine learning · From the text: says what the passages say

Clement of Alexandria quotes the saying while warning about lustful looks. He says the eye reveals the inner life, and an eye trained to see rightly brings gladness to the heart.

4 “For “the lamp of the body is the eye,” says the Scripture, and by it the inside, lit by the shining light, is made visible.”

later in the same passage

“The eye that looks at beautiful things gladdens the heart. That is, the eye that has learned to see rightly brings gladness.”

POINT 5 OF 7

Sin covers the eyes of the soul

Our note · compiled by machine learning · From the text: says what the passages say

Theophilus of Antioch speaks of the eyes of the soul. Just as rust spoils a mirror, sin covers the soul's eyes so a person cannot see God. A pure soul is like a polished mirror.

5 “In the same way, O man, the eyes of your soul are covered over by your sins and evil deeds. A person ought to have a soul that is pure, like a polished mirror.”

POINT 6 OF 7

God heals and opens the inner eye

Our note · compiled by machine learning · From the text: says what the passages say

Theophilus calls God the Physician who heals the eyes of the soul for anyone willing to come to Him. Clement says that in baptism the sins that darken us are wiped away, leaving the eye of the spirit full of light.

6 “But if you are willing, you may be healed. Entrust yourself to the Physician, and He will heal the eyes of your soul and your heart.”

7 “As, then, those who have shaken off sleep immediately become fully awake within; or rather, as those who try to remove a film over the eyes do not supply light to them from outside, which they do not possess, but by removing the obstacle from the eyes leave the pupil free; so also we who are baptized, having wiped off the sins that darken the light of the Divine Spirit, have the eye of the spirit free, unimpeded, and full of light.”

POINT 7 OF 7

Envy and hatred plunge us into darkness

Our note · compiled by machine learning · Interpretation: our reading of the passages, not their words

Cyprian does not quote these verses, but he uses the same picture. Jealousy and malice put out the light of peace and love and leave a person walking blind, away from Christ the light.

8 “Why do you rush into the darkness of jealousy? Why do you wrap yourself in the cloud of malice? Why do you put out all the light of peace and love in the blindness of envy?”

THE LIMITS

What these passages don’t tell us

- Only Gregory Thaumaturgus comments on these verses line by line; the others use the picture of the inner eye more generally.
- Tatian places the saying right after Jesus' words about treasure, but none of these writers explains that link.
- A word-for-word match shows that a quotation really is in our text. It does not show that our reading of it is right, or who wrote each work.
